

David S. Weiss is the co-founder and executive director of Northeast Historic Film, a non-profit moving image archives located in Bucksport, Maine. Since its founding in 1986, NHF has built collections including more than 10 million feet of film and 8,000 hours of videotape. The facility includes a moving image vault building constructed in 2003, technical services section, study center and the Alamo Theater.

From 1989 to 2011 Weiss served as a member of the Maine Historical Records Advisory Board and is a founding member of the Association of Moving Image Archivists. At various times he served as a member of the board of the Blue Hill Memorial Hospital and George Stevens Academy. In 1978 he graduated from Brown University, Providence, RI with a BA in Semiotics; the theoretical, historical and practical study of film arts, communication and language.
